The special joint committee appointed by Governor Tyler to inspect the Sollers' Home, as required under the law coverning that institution, met yester ay afternoon at the Governor's Mansion and drove from theire in carriages to the Home. The Governor and Major N. V. candolph, the president of the Board of Randoiph, the president of the Board of Visitors of the Soidiers' Home, accompanied the committee.

The latter consisted of Senator Henry Fairfax, of Loudoun, Senator M. C. Lowry, of Bedford, and Delegates E. W. Saunders, of Frankin; J. C. Freatherston, of Campbeu, and W. B. Pendleton, of Louisa, General G. C. Wharton also accompanied the committee.

Upon their arival at the Soidiers' Home the visitors found the old Confederate vectans drawn up in live and a salute was fired in honor of their visit. The committee went through the entire insti-

AGAINST THE PENSION FUND. The House Committee on Counties, Cities and Towns, while considering Mr. Stubbs' bill providing for the pensioning of needy Confederate veterans and their widows, apointed a sub-committee for the purpose of framing a proper bill. This committee consisted of Messrs, J. C. Featherston of Campbell, A. L. Min-ter of Bedford and J. N. Stubbs of Gloucester, and these gentlemen finally agreed on a bill which seeks to fix the State tax rate at 42 cents on every hundred dollars' worth of taxable property in-stead of 40 cents as it is now. This amount is to be divided among the various purposes as follows: 26 1-2 per cent. for general State purposes, 10 per cent, for public free schools and 5 1-2 per cent, for pensions of Confederate soldiers and for the maintenance of the Soldiers'

WHAT IT MEANS.

There was really no other baking powder that could be relied upon.

that could be relied upon.

It has been referred to as remarkable that the United State Government, in fitting out its expedition for the relief of the whalers imprisoned in the Arctic Seas, should have selected and included Royal Baking Powder among its supplies, and no other.

This is not at all to be wondered at. The superior quality of the Royal made its use upon this occasion indispensable. The Royal is the only baking powder so carefully and perfectly made that it will keep fresh in all climates, under variable degrees of temperature and moisture, during long sea voyages, etc. It is the only haking powder that will do its work uniformly and perfectly at the Poles and under the Equator as well as in the United States.

The Royal is regularly and continuously selected for use at our army posts, in the navies of this country and Great Britain and upon the fleets of merchant vessels that cover the occans, irrespective of the flag they fly.

All this means that the Royal is the best baking powder for home use also, it means that it has qualities peculiar to itself which make its usefulness beyond that possible for any other baking powder to attain.

Mrs. Lucy W. Cocke.

The death of Mrs. Lucy Williamson. Cocke, which occurred yesterday (Saturday, Jamary 2, 1288), in the eighty-second year of her age at her home, the splendid old mansion, Bremo, in Fluvanna county, Va. breaks another of those rapidly parting links which unites the halcyon days of Virginia with the present.

The changes which have taken place in social and political conditions within the lives of such representatives of old Virginia as Mrs. Cocke, have no parallel in history, and the description of what was, in contrast with what is, would be regarded with incredulity by all except those who are old enough to remember for themselves. The lives of those who formerly had the honor to represent the wealthy country gentry of Virginia were under conditions so completely removed from their existing environment as to be incomprehensible to those who only know the presont.

Mrs. Cocke and her associates were typilam county, and was brought up as his child.

It was on a visit to that county over forty years ago that Mrs. Cocke, Mrs. Braxton and two other ladies, were saved from instant drowning by the presence of mind and intrepidity of her carriage driver. William Skipwith, a highly esteemed servant, who was ever afterwards regarded not only with increased affection, but veneration. The splendid pair of horses which were drawing the carriage in which the four ladies sat were drowned in the Pamunkey river, but the precious lives of the mistress and her friends were saved by the faithful negro. For many years Mrs. Cocke has led a retired life, rarely leaving her beautiful home, which overlooks the most fertile stretch of the upper James river valley. She was deeply interested in Grace Episcopal church, near Bremo Bluff, and it was not kept open more constantly.

Surrounded as she had been with an atmosphere of piety, simple faith and sincere religion had become parts of her very nature.

Her end was without any pain whatever and with unclouded reason and unclouded faith she "fell asleep."

CARTHAGA, Jan. 29.—The first-class armored cruiser Vizcaya has started for America. The rest of the Spanish squadron is preparing to sail for Havana.

The ironciad Cristobel Colon (formerly Gluseppe Garibeldi II.) will accompany the torpedo flottilla inter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20.—No official advices have been received here as yet to confirm the reported intention of the Spanish Government to send a freet of warships to Havana.

The Spanish Legation was informed some time and that the small gunboats now engaged in patrolling the Cubarcoast would be errengthened soon by the addition of a number of torpedo boats, and it is this flottilla that is expected to sail for havana as soon as conditions permit.

The boats are said to be wanted particular.

sail for Havana as soon as conditions permit.

The boats are said to be wanted particularly for service on the Canto river and in Havana harbor. The cotains of the fine cruiser Cristobel Colon, one of the best ships in the Spanish navy, with the tornedo hoats, is said to be necessary to their safety, as these little craft must have a convoy to come to their relief in case of severe weather and to help out their coal supply. Even with this assistance, it is said, the boats will have a risky youse.

Mrs. Lucy W. Cocke.

de from theer exists and the series who only know the present.

Mrs. Cocke and her associates were typical representatives of the very best development of that beautiful divilization which disclosed wealth without ostentation, refinement with simplicity, hospitality without limit; a sensitive honor with humble plety, and withal a patriotism which made Virginia the very ido! of their hearts.

Mrs. Cocke was the reliet of Dr. Cary Charles Cocke, who died in 1888, and the daughter-in-law of that philanthropist, General John H. Cocke, and no one was ever so related to two more perfect Christian gentlemen. She was a Miss Oliver, of Hanover, and her father dying while she was very young, she became the ward of General Corbin Braxton, of King William county, and was brought up as his child.

DEATH OF MR. CHAS. H READ.

Every new and then, in this every-day world in which we live and work, we meet with men and women whose charmeet with men and women woose char-acters dignify numan nature and seem to lessen the chasm between humanity and Dinvinity. It is not not irreverent to speak thus of them; for souls of this uncarthly purity and strength and beauty are but the outcome of the indwelling of he Son of God. In this city, yesterday morning—before it was yet day—such a morning-before it was yet day-such a soul as this quietly exchanged earth for Heaven. No one who ever knew Mrs. Tryphena and her life the almost immeasurable words we have just penned. She came to this city nearly half a century ago, with this city nearly half a century ago, with her husband, who, early in 1849, succeeded Rev. Dr. Stiles as paster of what was then known as the "Shockoe Hill Presbyterian church," situated at the corner of Franklin and Eighth streets. This building was burned at the evacuation of the city in 1855, and through the determined efforts of Dr. and Mrs. Read and their devoted people, aided by the liberality of Christians all over the land, the handsome church at the corner of Fourth handsome church at the corner of Fourth and Grace streets was finally erected. No and Grace streets was finally erected. No one who took part in the prolonged and tremendous struggle of that noble congregation can ever forget it, and wherever and whenever it is remembered, there will be recalled the real will be recalled the pale, sweet, resolute face, the impressive, inspiring, all-com-pelling will—the dauntless, deathless courage-the superhuman contagious energy of this marvellous little woman.

But her work was not alone in building churches; she filled them with people as well. The Sunday school, the Dorcas Society, the poor, the outcast, the wandering, the tempted, the afflicted—all recognized her as their leader and suide. dering, the tempted, the afflicted—all recognized her as their leader and guide, their helper and comforter and friend.
It is questioned whether there have ever been lived in Richmond fifty years of grander, sweeter service than these. Two features specially marked them. One was that Mrs. Read not only thus herself worked threlessly for God and man, but she had the faculty of setting other souls on fire with the same unselfish,

The other feature of her life and character which deserves special mention in this connection is, that she was far from that type of religious devotes who is interested in everything except her own household. No. indeed, this many-sided little woman was as supreme and as supremely devoted within her home as premely devoted within her home as without it. She was an exquisite house-keeper. Her house was always a model of neatness and comfort, and as tastefully adorned as the moderate means of a Christian minister would allow. She was the soul of hospitality. Her attractive home was often the home of the home to minister to their comfort or enjoy their

It is sad beyond expression that the law of life here below is the law of de-cay and death. Such a soul does not die, it does not even grow eld; but it must eventually wear out the body, as hers did. To the very last, however, her intellect and will and affections were what they had ever been; and, even after her physical vitality seemed utterly exhausted, her unselfish anxiety for the comfort and well-being of her husabad and every member of her family, and even for every interest of her every friend, sur every interest of her every friend, sur-vived up to the very hour of her departure, undiminished.

She did not die—she only ceased to live here. On Priday evening, after firmly
